

DOCTORAL THESIS

The genealogy of Apple in China: towards a genetic phenomenological sociology of culture, media and technology

Zhang, Qing

Date of Award:
2017

Link to publication

General rights

Copyright and intellectual property rights for the publications made accessible in HKBU Scholars are retained by the authors and/or other copyright owners. In addition to the restrictions prescribed by the Copyright Ordinance of Hong Kong, all users and readers must also observe the following terms of use:

- Users may download and print one copy of any publication from HKBU Scholars for the purpose of private study or research
- Users cannot further distribute the material or use it for any profit-making activity or commercial gain
- To share publications in HKBU Scholars with others, users are welcome to freely distribute the permanent URL assigned to the publication

Abstract of the thesis

The genealogy of Apple in China: towards a genetic phenomenological sociology of culture, media and technology

The state of cultural and social theories is not satisfactory though they seem to flourish in terms of quantity. Scholars successfully describe most of the cultural and social phenomena but propose wildly different, sometime even opposite, interpretations of these phenomena. This thesis offers genetic phenomenological sociology as an alternative interpretation that goes beyond structure oriented theories and construction (agency) oriented theories. It proposes to interpret cultural and social phenomena in the process of their emergence and transformation, and argues that this process or genealogy is the social ontology of culture and society.

This thesis develops genetic phenomenological sociology through exploring the genetic side of phenomenology and social theories, and through examining the emergence and transformation of Apple in China. Genealogy is not only method and critique, but also social ontology. This is a main theoretical argument and objective of empirical analysis of the thesis.

Theoretically, this thesis explores the genetic side of Husserlian phenomenology, phenomenological sociology as well as the genetic side of social theories. These theories fully develop genealogy as method and critique and imply genealogy as social ontology. But they do not fully develop the idea of genealogy as social ontology. This underdevelopment leads to theoretical problems of subject and normativity, such as Husserlian phenomenology and Foucault's theory. Genealogy, as social ontology, is a way out of the dichotomy of structure and construction, a way out of the philosophy of subject, and a solution to the problems of subject and normativity. This theoretical argument is further developed through theoretical investigation of meaning context, social ontology, genealogy, practice, encountering and embodiment from the perspective of genetic phenomenological sociology in the substantive chapters.

Empirically, the genetic phenomenological sociology of Apple answers the question how Apple culture emerges and transforms in China. It examines Apple in genesis in China from the 1980s to 2015. First, the meaning context of this period can be largely described as a transformation of electronic culture from modernization in the 1980s to individualism and consumerism after 2000 through marketization. Second, Apple store exemplifies the social ontology and epistemology of genetic phenomenological sociology. Third, the genealogy of Apple advertisements, media practices and media ritualization concerning Steve Jobs and the cultural encountering of Apple in the meaning context of China's reform era illustrate how Apple culture emerges and transforms. Finally, the genetic phenomenological sociology of Apple technology further reveals the relation between people and thing, which is embodiment.

This thesis develops genetic phenomenological sociology as an alternative approach in the study of culture, media and technology that goes beyond structure and construction oriented theories. The ontological root of genetic phenomenological sociology, which is the non-subject philosophy, needs to be further developed.

Table of contents

Abstract of the thesis.....	ii
Acknowledgements.....	v
Table of contents	vi
Chapter 1 Introduction: the emergence of Apple in China: culture, media and technology	1
1.1 Introduction.....	1
1.2 Apple culture in practice	4
1.2.1 The end of structure and construction.....	4
1.2.2 Action, practice and genetic phenomenological sociology.....	13
1.2.3 Apple culture in the perspective of genetic phenomenological sociology	22
1.3 Research methodology and phenomenological root	29
1.4 Organization of the thesis	34
Chapter 2 Towards a genetic phenomenological sociology: genealogy and social ontology	43
2.1 Introduction.....	43
2.2 Static and genetic phenomenology: from strict science to life world.....	44
2.2.1 Static phenomenology.....	47

2.2.2 Genetic phenomenology	51
2.3 Static phenomenological sociology: form life world to social world	58
2.3.1 Schutz’s static phenomenological sociology	58
2.3.2 Social construction and ethnomethodology	61
2.4 Genetic phenomenological sociology: genealogy as social ontology.....	65
2.4.1 Genetic side of social theory and philosophy	66
2.4.2 Genealogy, phenomenology, and the problems of subject and normativity	69
2.4.3 Time, genealogy and social ontology.....	87
2.5 Chapter Summary	95

Chapter 3 The transformation of electronic culture in China: from modernization to individualism and consumerism..... 98

3.1 Introduction.....	98
3.2 Modernization, individualism and consumerism in China	101
3.2.1 Modernization	101
3.2.2 Individualism and consumerism	104
3.3 Modernization as electronic culture from the 1950s to the 1980s.....	109
3.3.1 The state: modern society	110
3.3.2 Organizations: serving the modernization, serving the people.....	112

3.3.3 Individuals: learners and workers	115
3.4 Towards an electronic culture of individualism and consumerism	117
3.4.1 The state: wealthy and harmonious society	118
3.4.2 Organizations: serving the business, serving the individual consumer	121
3.4.3 Individuals: users and players	123
3.5 Chapter summary	127
Chapter 4 Being in the Apple store: the genetic phenomenological sociology of social space.....	130
4.1 Introduction.....	130
4.2 Space as social relation: the political economy and genetic phenomenological sociology of space.....	131
4.2.1 The political economy of space	133
4.2.2 The phenomenology of space and genetic phenomenological sociology of space.....	138
4.3 Being in the Apple store: the social phenomenological ontology of space .	142
4.3.1 Dwellings, vessels and space	142
4.3.2 The Apple store	145
4.3.3 Being in an Apple store and on-line Apple store	147

4.3.4 People and things	149
4.4 Encountering in the Apple store: the social phenomenological epistemology of space	151
4.4.1 Encountering and care structure.....	151
4.4.2 Encountering people and things.....	153
4.4.3 Placelessness, de-distance and mediation.....	156
4.5 Chapter summary	158
Chapter 5 The genealogy of Apple advertisements: the genetic phenomenological sociology of emergence and transformation	160
5.1 Introduction.....	160
5.2 Genealogy as method, critique and social ontology: the perspective of genetic phenomenological sociology	164
5.2.1 Genealogy as method and critique: problematization and normativity	164
5.2.2 Genealogy as social ontology: emergence, transformation and meaning context.....	167
5.3 The genealogy of Apple advertisements	172
5.3.1 Apple advertisements in China media.....	172
5.3.2 The origin of Apple counterculture image	183

5.3.3 The genealogy of Apple advertisements in the meaning context	188
5.4 Chapter summary	193
Chapter 6 Media ritualization of Steve Jobs in China: the genetic phenomenological sociology of media practice.....	195
6.1 Introduction.....	195
6.2 Genetic phenomenological sociology of media practice and media
ritualization	197
6.2.1 Mediated ritual and ritualized media practice.....	197
6.2.2 Media practice and media ritualization.....	201
6.3 Media practice: the news coverage in China of Steve Jobs' death	208
6.3.1 The morphology of news coverage on Steve Jobs' death	208
6.3.2 The mythology of Steve Jobs in China media	216
6.4 Media ritualization: Steve Jobs in China media from the 1980s to 2015	221
6.4.1 The media ritualization of Steve Jobs in the 1980s and the 1990s ...	222
6.4.2 The media ritualization of Steve Jobs after 2000.....	226
6.5 Chapter summary	228
Chapter 7 The encountering of Apple in China: the genetic phenomenological sociology of social imaginary.....	230
7.1 Introduction.....	230

7.2 Genetic phenomenological sociology of encountering and social imaginary	232
7.2.1 Cultural reception in the philosophy of subject	232
7.2.2 Encountering from genetic phenomenological sociology	236
7.2.3 Social imaginary and individual imagination	240
7.3 The encountering and social imaginary of Apple in China	243
7.3.1 The encountering and social imaginary of Apple and modernization in the 1980s	243
7.3.2 The encountering and social imaginary of Apple and marketization in the 1990s	247
7.3.3 The encountering and social imaginary of Apple and individualism and consumerism after 2000	251
7.4 Chapter summary	255

Chapter 8 Potentiality, intentionality and embodiment: the genetic

phenomenological sociology of Apple technology	257
8.1 Introduction	257
8.2 Towards a genetic phenomenological sociology of technology	261
8.2.1 Technological materialism and its misinterpretation	261
8.2.2 The social construction of technology and its exaggeration	264

8.2.3 The genetic phenomenological sociology of technology.....	268
8.3 The genealogy of Apple technology	274
8.3.1 The emergence of Apple technology	275
8.3.2 The diffusion of Apple technology in China.....	278
8.3.3 Embodiment: potentiality, intentionality and mediation.....	280
8.4 Chapter summary	285
Chapter 9 Conclusion: culture in practice: the genealogy of Apple in China	289
Bibliography	298